

RELATION OF PARENTS WITH HANDWASHING BEHAVIOR IN GRADE V CHILDREN OF SDN 3 SEDAYU BANTUL

Zara Hariki ¹, Susiana Sariyati ², Sulistyawati ³

ABSTRAK

Latar Belakang : School age is very sensitive to inculcate understanding and healthy living habits, because susceptible to disease. Health education through primary school children is very effective to change healthy behaviors and habits as well as getting used to wash hands. Parents as caregivers and responses from the environment, is indispensable for the child as a reinforcer for every behavior he has done.

Objective : To know there a parenting pattern relationship with hands washing behavior in grade V SDN 3 Sedayu Bantul.

Research Method : This Planning research using Descriptive Analitic research thought Cross Sectional approach. The population of this study is all children of grade V SDN 3 Sedayu Bantul, which amount to 49 children. The sample amounted to 49 respondents took by total sampling technique. Analyzing data using Chi Square.

The Result : The results of this study indicate that the value of probability significance $0,157 > 0,05$, then H_0 accepted and H_0 rejected, meaning there is no significant relationship between parenting with handwashing behavior in children SDN 3 Sedayu Bantul..

Conclutions : No parenting pattern relationship with handwashing behavior in SDN 3 Sedayu Bantul children.

Keywords : Child, Behavior Hands Washing, Parenting Patterns

¹ The students of Alma Ata University of Yogyakarta

² The lecthure of Alma Ata University of Yogyakarta

³ The lecthure of Alma Ata University of Yogyakarta

